

- by his treatment, 300; visits the Empress Josephine, 301, 309; appointment given to him, 334; his interview with the Emperor, 335; his instructions for Hamburg, 337; commission to Josephine, 342; delivers his credentials to Senate of Hamburg, 356; letters from Bernadotte, 361; from Duroc, 364; reproaches M. Door maun, 369; censorship of the press, 369, n.; difficulties of his situation, 373; receives a packet from Josephine, 374; Duroc's letter to, 404; his functions at Hamburg, iii. 1; arrests Louis Loizeau, 33; difficulties of his situation, 38; his new office, 39; the Emperor's satisfaction at his conduct, 40; Murat's letters to, 46; his advice to Napoleon, 62; furnishes supplies for the army, 82; his dispute with the Director of Customs at Hamburg, 83; receives a letter from Josephine, 110; Napoleon's orders to, 111; his request to the Minister for Foreign Affairs, 113; false reports respecting, 114; accused of favoring the Bourbons, 115; letter to, from Marshal Bernadotte, 118; receives a present from Jerome Bonaparte, 175; his advice to Bernadotte, 202; receives a letter from him, 208; returns to Paris, 214; Napoleon's demand upon him, 215; his interview with Josephine, 218, 232; returns to Hamburg, 247; sends a report to Napoleon, 253; unfounded reports respecting, 254; his proposed mission to Switzerland, 312; declines it, 313; anecdote of, 315; Marshal Marmont's remark to, 353; appointed Postmaster General, 360; his advice to Marmont, 367; forwards all intercepted letters, 374; summoned to M. Talleyrand's, ib.; visited by General Blucher, 386.; praised by the King of Prussia, 388; by Louis XVIII., iv. 36; dismissed from his office, 38; his devotion to the Bourbons, 42; summoned to the Tuileries, 75; appointed Prefect of Police, ib.; proscribed by Napoleon, ib., n.; his interviews with Louis XVIII., 79; with M. Blacas, 81; sets out for Lille, 87; interview with Louis XVIII., 88; his appointment at Hamburg, 89; connection with General Driesen, 93; reason for Napoleon's suspicion of, 94; examination of his papers, 95; arrives at St. Denis, 223; his opinion of Fouché's appointment, 224; visits Marshal Blucher, 231; his appointments, 233; conversation with Fouché, 234; appointed Minister of State, 240; under the Bourbons, 298; his sad end, 300.

| | |
|---|---|
| Bourrienne, Madame, her observations on Bonaparte, i. 31, n.; her account of her husband's arrest, 33; sets off to meet him, 221; visited by the Duchess of Mecklenburg, iii. 31; anecdote of, 134; quits Paris, iv, 9; remonstrates with the police agents, 95. Bouvier, M., an emigrant, letter of, iii. 225. Brandstaten, Baron von, waits upon the Emperor Napoleon, iii. 72. Brayer, iv. 379, n. Brienne, battle of, iii. 339, ?i. Brueys, Admiral, orders sent to, to take Malta, i. 117; letter to, 122; his conversations with Bonaparte, 128; anecdote of, 129; his foresight, 133; sends for the French Consul, 134; his representations to Bonaparte, 134; blame attached to, 150. Braix, Admiral, insists on Barras retiring from the Directory, i. 243; disobedience to Napoleon, ii. 313. Brun, M. le, Gov.-Gen. of Genoa, ii. 347; latter part of his career, iv. 292. Brune, Marshal, at the head of the army in Batavia, i. 275; created a Marshal, ii. 266; succeeds to the government of Hamburg, iii. 43; his mission to Bremen, 82; assassinated by Royalist mob, iv. 25, n., 271. Brunswick, Duke of, proposition to bring him to the throne, i. 230; wounded at the battle of Auerstjdt, iii. 35; his death, 30. — (Els, Duke of, movements of, iii. 108; reviews his troops, iv. 128. - -, Frederick William, Duke of, arrived at Quatre Bras, iv. 149; killed at the battle of, 153; account of, ib., n. | - -, Charles William Ferdinand, Duke of, slain at the battle of Jena, iv. 153, n. Brussels, town of, state of, iv. 128; consternation in, 130. Bulow, Gen., corps commanded by, iv. 125; marches from Wavro, 177; his attack upon the village of Planchenoit, 182, 183. Bunny, Madame de, Napoleon's kindness to, iii. 4. Burghersh, Lord, paragraph from his Memoirs, iii. 335, n. Butler, John, a spy, intrigues of, iii. 72. Cadore, Duke of, sec Champagne, M. Cadoudal, Georges, his interview with Napoleon, i. 349; conspiracy of, ii. 209; arrested, 210; sentenced to death, 220; account of his arrest, 256; confined in the Temple, 257; Louis Bonaparte's visit to, 258; his fortitude, 259; his trial, 273; his firmness, 280; sentenced to death, 285; his execution, 287. |
|---|---|